

Healthcare Council discusses cross-industry collaboration with Pumps & Pipes

The Partnership held its Healthcare Council on October 20 in the Partnership board room. Council Host Jason Mercer, Director of Business Development at Acadian Ambulance Service, welcomed Mark Sangster, Associate Director of Pumps & Pipes, as the Council speaker.

Pumps & Pipes aims to establish unique and innovative cross-industry collaborations between the energy, healthcare, and aerospace industries as well as educational institutions. The four founding members are ExxonMobil, Houston Methodist, NASA Johnson Space Center and University of Houston. In the past seven years, Pumps & Pipes has orchestrated nine conferences, inviting innovative minds from all across the Houston region. The outcomes of these conferences can be seen in a host of projects that have developed cross-industry solutions.

“Pumps and Pipes is a ‘uniquely Houston’ notion,” said Sangster. The next conference is Monday, December 7, 2015. You can visit pumpsandpipes.com to find out more information or watch the conference live. The webcast has reached over 29 states within the USA and 33 countries around the world.