

Resolution of the Board of Directors Congratulating Drayton McLane and Jon Lindsay upon their induction into the Texas Transportation Hall of Honor

The Greater Houston Partnership Board of Directors congratulates Mr. Drayton McLane and the Honorable Jon Lindsay upon their induction into the Texas Transportation Institute's (TTI) Hall of Honor.

The Houston region and the state of Texas boast leading multimodal transportation systems, a key to supporting economic development efforts and to providing Texans a high quality of life. The TTI Hall of Honor was created to recognize "unusual vision and leadership" in the field of transportation – qualities exemplified by both men.

Mr. McLane is rightfully honored thanks to his innovative and pioneering achievements in logistics and transportation, particularly in the grocery industry. So efficient were his methods, he was asked for his assistance to handle logistics and distribution by Wal-Mart leadership for their superstores in 1990. During his decade-long tenure, Wal-Mart became the largest grocery retailer in the world. The innovations he revolutionized in logistics and distribution during the last 50 years are still being utilized by major grocers today. Mr. McLane has also been instrumental on the 2030 Committee, a blue-ribbon panel established to help identify transportation funding needs in Texas.

The Honorable Mr. Lindsay was a strong advocate for a robust highway system and improved transportation infrastructure during his public life as Harris County Judge for 20 years and then as a Texas state senator for 10 years. During his tenure as judge, Mr. Lindsay was instrumental in the creation of the voter-approved Harris County Toll Road Authority in 1983. Today, the network of toll roads around Harris County serves as a vital artery system facilitating travel around the region and is instrumental to our economic development efforts around the world. His work on behalf of our region's transportation needs continued during his career in the state senate.

The Partnership's Board of Directors congratulates Mr. Drayton McLane and the Honorable Jon Lindsay for their inclusion into the TTI Hall of Honor.
